The above described real property is held separately and the original title is retained by the majority of these young men, although some of the present owners and managers have granted a power of attorney to another to handle the business of managing and operating the same or parts thereof.

In the management of these properties, and in their cooperation between the various individuals holding several of these properties, and the others also of these several properties.

of managing these properties, and to have a common policy in the handling of these properties, so as to have
