1. The first point of observation is the fact that the terrain is a flat, open field of approximately 100 feet by 100 feet. The field is bounded on the north and east by a low, grassy ridge. The ridge is approximately 10 feet high and runs parallel to the field. The field is covered with a light layer of grass and some scattered weeds. The terrain is relatively level, with a slight slope towards the south and west. The field is located in a rural area, with some scattered trees and shrubs visible in the background. The field is the primary area of interest in this document.
